READING MATTER ON EVERY PAGE
SUNDAY NOV. 7, 1858

✓ The editor of the Journal is a great deal exercised about the President's proclamation against fillibusters. He is not satisfied that the democrat says nothing about it. The subject is getting rather old and worn out. All the way on the Gulf have been...

...on them have become chronic, and the government has done nothing itself after a few years' opportunity. It has written some very fine sentences; but Central America is in the same condition. Besides these filibusters have proved well demonstrated that they are humble creatures; they don't succeed in accomplishing the thing they promise. On the other hand, the evidence is manifest, and they have heretofore received no compensation for the mischief.

We are against these failures. The man who takes the responsibility of an experiment in filibustering and accomplishing nothing but delay, must pay the penalty; and an expedition that promises nothing but trouble and disaster should be stopped.

At present, responsible governments have no voice in the affairs of Central America inasmuch as they cannot brook an interruption. The measures of our government must not be

...of our government must not be started by its citizens, or irresponsible parties in this country. Besides, these proclamations are all right. We never condemn a president for sustaining the law, but for going beyond it, and allowing others to perpetrate barbarities on men who fell into their hands. Fillmore went beyond the law in his action, and Mr. Buchanan did still worse in passing the act of Spalding, in his invasion of the territory of Nicaragua to apprehend Walker. We should hold these irresponsible governments accountable to any respect. The first comer has no right to substitute something better. The subject, however, is now in the hands of our government, and it would be improper to allow the interference of irresponsible parties.

The Southern Pacific Railroad.
Our readers are aware that a compromise has been effected between the new company and the old one, by which the owners of the old company obtain their rights when the conditions of the compromise are complied with. They will have ample time to prosecute the enterprise, if a little more energy is used now. We have no apprehensions as to the result.

of failure, for what remains to be done is definitely fixed, and it is easily accomplished. We have a full meeting here on the 25th of the right sort. Good work now is called for of remuneration hereafter. The resources of the road are ample for its completion; and that the attention of stockholders is directed to the subject, there is no danger of a repetition of the error of the last year.

The construction of this road is the greatest enterprise of the age, and its ample means will remunerate its builders. Nothing but the most ill-advised, not to say corrupt, management would have produced this temporary embarrassment. It is plain that the vigilance of the public will prevent such evils hereafter.

The Paris Citizen makes itself merry at a meeting of the Democracy of Bourbons. They looked depressed, he thought, and rather begone. The editor need not be happy. This Democracy that he flatters himself so forlorn, will loom up again the most terrible organization he ever saw. He has no idea of its coming aspect. He will exclaim at

The jubilant outpourings of the Black Republicans over their recent exploits are short-sighted. What have they done? They have beaten a few Democrats with Lecompton; that's all they have done. They have not yet got their coats off before 1860, and the Black Republicanism will be nowhere.

The Journal wishes to know how Mr. Buchanan feels over the news from Illinois. He is a wonder; companions in misery ought to have an interest in each other's "feelings."

The Chicago Press and Tribune says: "We betray no confidence when we say that Slidell, when in this city, declared that the condition of these slaves was a disgrace to the owner; that they were badly clothed, badly fed, and excessively over-worked."

recognized as an honorable gentleman, at last man to injure even his worst enemy had an infamous charge as is attributed to him in the Chicago "Press and Tribune."

land, who, though thirty-eight years old, is thirty inches high. He is a tailor by trade, named F. F. Nichols, and was married on the 10th ult., to a lady five feet high, and weighing one hundred and fourteen pounds. He is supposed to be a good workman, and a "first rate" father.

Writer says there is one square mile of lavender Smyth and Washington counties, Va., on the north fork of the Holston river which is worth more than the whole valuation of the City of New York. The salt rock within this mile ranges from seventy to one hundred feet in thickness, which would yield a crop of forty bushels of salt to every yard it occupies, or over three thousand millions of bushels, which when manufactured, is worth from fifty to fifty cents per bushel. But presum-be worth twenty cents per bushel in the ground, and we have six hundred millions of bushels! to which we must add two hundred and fifty millions of tons of plaster within the same space, worth in the ground about one dollar per ton, making a total of eight hundred and fifty millions of dollars.

☞ The State of Georgia has over two hundred miles of railroad built, but what is more extraordinary, paid for, which yield stockholders more than an average of seven per cent. in yearly dividends. Two hundred miles of additional roads are to be added during the coming season.

Mr. Editor: Irene's been sick—to sick to write, but not too sick to look for the 'Ladies' Column.' What has become of it? Really its absence is a little like the absence of the sun. I mean, it ain't dead—is it? I put our complaints in it, and it can never be resuscitated? I pray it—it wouldn't you? I guess some of the town boys were just sick of their whiskers a growin' and wanted to get 'em cut. I guess some of the town girls were sick of their hair tow to—your Adell, Adelaide, Olga, and Anna, Minnie, Merna, and the Widow, and Aunt Betsy Gussy too—each an all on em. I guess the poor fellows had—while waiting for the aforsaid manly appendage was the readin' of the dear epistles every Sunday mornin'—and I guess they were sick of that, too. I bet I had to do have mercy on 'em an put the 'Columns' aloot—in 'type' again, or their case will be hopeless. And lastly, sir, you gave me a little more to think of. I guess you're a good people, an funny affair, she sees, an hears of, if cause if you do, you'll give some of the cou-boy's" the heart ache, sure; cause they know her, and her "rast" edification to them to tell her, "I know you, I know you, as the saint told 'em 'all' yet—so just—clear up the brace tins," spread out the sails of that "Catharine wheel" and give 'em a "blast" and they have our "or," we'll have to get the "rats" after you Sir, in double quick time. No ef-fense—please, Mr. Editor, IRENE.

Indeed Irene, we had no idea of stopping the column; it disappeared two Sundays for the best reason in the world—there was nothing to fill it for the week. I am sure that all fair friends had grown tired and wished it stopped of their own accord; so long as they keep up the column's interest, so long as shall we be pleased to publish it.

Resolved, That the Democratic party in this county recognizes the various aspirants to the Presidential chair well worthy our support and confidence, and that it is its policy to express its opinion in regard to the propriety of an expression of preference not only for the first, but all the others, in the gift of the people, we will, therefore, do it with as much unanimity as we can for ourselves, and that in casting our votes in the State convention for the various offices, we will be governed by the principles of merit, grace and ability.

Resolved, That, in our opinion, the Honorable Beniah Magoffin, of Mercer county, has labored for the Democratic name as many sacrifices for the maintenance of the principles of our party as any other man in the State, and that we should

MESSRS. EDITORS:—The difficulties which exist in relation to the inspection of Tobacco should be arranged at once, and it is hoped that the special Committee appointed by the Council last night will take early steps to effect it. It is certain that in refusing to bid under the present inspection the buyers meant to disrespect to towards the City Council, or, personally, towards the gentleman appointed. Neither was the step taken hastily nor in a spirit of rebellion. The matter was discussed calmly. The buyers felt assured that the world would be injured in their business, that the reputation of the market would suffer, and that anything was better than a strike. It was necessary to do it immediately, instead of waiting for the full current of trade was upon them. Such an interruption as at present exists would be absolutely ruinous if it were to occur during the season. It was necessary to hasten to a single week. It was necessary to have the market arranged now or never.

The trade is too important to the best interests of the country to be used simply for the personal gratification of any one or any set of men, and some one must yield. The buyers will hardly abandon their position as their interests are so much concerned in maintaining their demand; and the sellers would be doing so the evil would not be cured.

Neither planter, buyer, nor consumer would be able to escape the trade. The trade would move heavily under the weight of mutual suspicion, and a large amount of tobacco would move and should come to this market through the same points. It is important to the interests of all parties to the trade, or indirectly connected with the trade, and this embraces nearly every business man in the city, that immediate action of some kind should be taken.

Progression in Journalism.

There is a very interesting way of illustrating the progress of journalism in this country, that, like accidents, sometimes occur in irregular families; affairs that people are at regular duty to know, but which have not, until recently been considered proper subjects for newspaper announcement. The following appeared in a Leavenworth paper not long since:

Engaged—Miss Anne Mould to John Canby, city Marshal, both of Leavenworth. K. 11.

To those newspapers that are desirous of being fully up to the age in which they exist, if they have no other means of coming in contact with intelligent people in regard to matters of public interest with the above, are suggested.

"Jillie"—Mr. Augustus Jones, by Miss Anna's address, was the subject of the following:

"Miffed—Miss Priscilla Frost, at her intended, Commotion Cummings."

"Frestated—Junkies, (first name unknown), the elderly lady who lives near the depot."

"Postioned—We learn the Gossipette," between Horatio Squills and Lodoksy Plunkins, whose engagement, it may be remembered, has been broken off, in consequence of all extemporaries, is postponed on account of an unfortunate dispute having arisen between them in regard to whether the girl he used to call "the little blonde," to wit, the one who pinched, had her hair done up with a blue or a red colored ribbon. The friends of the parties are thrown into the greatest distress by this engagement, as the bridegroom is now obliged to wait until his earliest indications were given.

noted by the daily prints, and whose progression has been recorded day by day by this journal, with the liveliest satisfaction to all parties concerned. It is hoped no pains will be spared to bring to light the ribbon that has caused the unfortunate quarrel, and that the union may be finally consummated."

OF Dr. Randolph, a celebrated spiritualist, has openly recanted. He says, after an experience of nine years, that spiritualism is one-third imposture, one-third insanity, and one-third disbolism.
